Lucky Stanford students restoring a '62 Cadillac for college credit

By Justin Hyde

Published: Thu, Apr 19, 2012 11:37 AM EDT
Updated: Thu, Apr 19, 2012 11:38 AM EDT

Lucky Stanford students restoring a '62 Cadillac for college credit

While the car needs to be running within a matter of weeks, I'd say the students got lucky with the vehicle construction.

Part of Stanford's Revs Program that studies the history and future of the automobile, the master's level Design Restoration course, "will explore not just what made the '62 De Ville the standard of the world but how it came to be that way."

"Perhaps the sequel could start with..."